

BOLIVIA

Railway Rivals Map

Version 1.0 Map by Richard Smith 2019
with invaluable help from Bob Gingell and Jim Reader
Drawn using RivalsGIMP 2.0

4 Players: start at Santa Cruz, La Paz, Sucre or Trinidad

5 Players: start at Santa Cruz, La Paz, Cochabamba, Trinidad or Tarija

Note that Cochabamba incorporates Sacaba and Quillacollo, Santa Cruz includes La Guardia and El Alto covers Viacha

Special Runs:

- 1) Brazil (N) - Cobija, Guayaramerin
- 2) Brazil (S) - San Matias, Puerto Suarez
- 3) Peru - Puerto Heath, Guaqui
- 4) Argentina - Villazon, Yacuiba
- 5) Chile - B26, F37
- 6) Paraguay - M78, Z35

Salt flats (silver) - no track can be built
Mountains with a diagonal bar are impassable
Swamp (green) +1 per half hex when building (no effect during races)

Background Notes (from https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rail_transport_in_Bolivia)

The Bolivian rail network has had a peculiar development throughout its history; owing to losses of land, prestige and credit rating due to the failure of the War of the Pacific, railway development came late to Bolivia. The demand for mineral wealth and communication to the inland city of La Paz, encouraged foreign investors, mainly British, to construct railways. However, into this mix came the experience of railway building in adjacent Peru, whereby overbuilding of standard gauge line across the high Andes meant that Peru went bankrupt.