

Railways of Bosnia and Herzegovina

'Bosnia Gauge' is still used today to identify the 760mm narrow gauge railways that became widespread in 19th and early 20th century Austria-Hungary and from there the world. Almost all those tracks were removed once a more limited standard gauge network was built after WW2.

Thanks to Bob Gingell and Jim Reader for their help in designing this map.

More RR maps at variablepig.org